

2008

About the Contributors

Follow this and additional works at: <http://digitalcommons.kennesaw.edu/jgi>

Recommended Citation

(2008) "About the Contributors," Journal of Global Initiatives: Policy, Pedagogy, Perspective: Vol. 3: No. 2, Article 11.
Available at: <http://digitalcommons.kennesaw.edu/jgi/vol3/iss2/11>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by DigitalCommons@Kennesaw State University. It has been accepted for inclusion in Journal of Global Initiatives: Policy, Pedagogy, Perspective by an authorized administrator of DigitalCommons@Kennesaw State University. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@kennesaw.edu.

About the Guest Editor

Olutayo Charles Adesina earned his Ph.D. in history from Obafemi Awolowo University, Ile-Ife, Nigeria. He is Associate Professor of history at the University of Ibadan, Nigeria where he has twice served as the Chair of its famous Department of History. He has held distinguished academic fellowships from Salzburg Seminar, Austria, Charles Warren Centre, Harvard University, U.S.A and Rhodes Chair of Race Relations, Centre for African Studies, Oxford University, U.K. He also holds the membership of the American Studies Association of Nigeria (ASAN), Historical Society of Nigeria (HSN) and several other professional bodies in Nigeria and in the United States. He was the founding editor of the Nigerian Journal of Economic History (NJEH), co-editor of Consolidation and Sustenance of Democracy: The United States of America and Nigeria (Ibadan, 2002), co-editor of Globalization and Transnational Migrations (London, forthcoming), and has published articles on the African parallel economy.

About the Contributors

Ameh Akoh attended the universities of Jos and Ibadan both in Nigeria. He is currently Senior Lecturer and Sub-Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Humanities at the Kogi State University, Anyigba-Nigeria. His research interests include Dramatic Theory and Criticism, Sociology of Literature, globalisation, Cultural and postcolonial studies from which he has over twenty publications in learned journals and books. He is currently working on a collection of essays on postcolonial studies in the humanities.

Bolanle Awe (M.A St. Andrews, D.Phil. Oxon) is Fellow of the Historical Society of Nigeria, and a Retired Professor of History and former Director of the Institute of African Studies, University of Ibadan, Nigeria. She was the Founding Chairperson of its Women's Research and Development Centre (WORDOC) and the first Chairperson of Nigeria's National Commission for Women. She is a member of the Board of the African Gender Institute, Cape Town University, South Africa, and is on the Advisory Board of the journal Gender and History. She has published extensively on the history of Ibadan and in the area of Women's Studies in Nigeria, and is the editor of Nigerian Women in Historical Perspective (1992).

Melanie E. L. Bush, Ph.D. is the author of Breaking the Code of Good Intentions: Everyday Forms of Whiteness, (Rowman and Littlefield Publishers, Inc. 2004), co-author of a forthcoming book entitled Tensions in the American Dream: The Imperial Nation Confronts the Liberation of Nations (Temple University Press with Dr. R. D. Bush, St. Johns University) and author of numerous articles in scholarly journals. She is currently Assistant Professor of Sociology at Adelphi University (Garden City, NY)

Daiyabu Mohammed Hassan is a lecturer in the Department of Political Science, Ahmadu Bello University, Zaria, Nigeria. He is completing his doctorate degree at the same institution. His research interests are in civilizational dialogue and Afrocentric studies.

Mutiati Kareem-Ojo teaches history at the Emmanuel Alayande College of Education, (Lanlate campus), Oyo State, Nigeria. She holds a masters degree from the Department of History, University of Ibadan, Nigeria. Her research interest focuses on gender and migration studies.

Daniel Paracka is director of International Services and Programs and associate professor of education at Kennesaw State University. His Ph.D. is in International Education Policy from Georgia State University. He has an established record of publications in the field of international education and has presented at many conferences on both a national and international level. In addition to administrative duties, he regularly teaches a freshman course aimed at helping students develop strategies to internationalize their college experience as well as a senior seminar course where students reflect on their global learning experiences and create e-portfolios. Dan is a past-chair of NAFSA: Association of International Educators for Region VII. He also served with the Peace Corps in Sierra Leone from 1985-1987 and taught English in China from 1987-1989.

H. Bahadır Turk is a lecturer in the Department of Political Science and International Relations at the Çankaya University in Ankara, Turkey. He teaches courses in Turkish political life. His research interests focus on comparative research on electoral behavior, right-wing populism, political communication and political parties. His most recent book is The Party and The Firm: The Young Party and New Politics (Istanbul: İletişim, 2008).