What's happening at Johnson Library?

Kennesaw State Marietta Campus students may have noticed a few changes at the Johnson Library. Recently all of the book collections have been moved to the 2nd floor. Also, the new help! desk is open for students now in Room 120.

"Summer will end soon enough and childhood as well."

~George R.R. Martin, A Game of Thrones

Reminder to all KSU faculty, staff, & students: the new fines/fees structure for the library that went into effect at the beginning of the year 2015 will resume August 3rd, 2015. Please be sure to check your library accounts regularly and return or renew any overdue materials.

For more information about fines/fees, please visit the library's website at: www.kennesaw.edu/library

BIG NEWS!

The long awaited opening of the main floor Learning Commons at Sturgis Library is tentatively scheduled for mid-August. This space is bright and open. It features 110 new computers as well as a 42 seat multi-purpose classroom. The check out and help! desks are located on this floor, too. Copy/print, K-Cash, and vending services are also available.

Please note that starting in late August the 1st floor (where the Information Commons is now located) will be restricted for use due to renovation. Exciting changes are coming to that floor and it is anticipated to be ready to re-open in late Fall.

Finally, we appreciate your patience as the 3rd floor group study rooms A-D & the Microfilm Reader Room are unavailable due to repairs. We wish to thank you for your cooperation as we continue to make progress with these much needed renovations.
