

June 2010

About the Contributors

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.kennesaw.edu/jgi>

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 License.

---

Recommended Citation

(2010) "About the Contributors," Journal of Global Initiatives: Policy, Pedagogy, Perspective: Vol. 4 : No. 1 , Article 9.
Available at: <https://digitalcommons.kennesaw.edu/jgi/vol4/iss1/9>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by DigitalCommons@Kennesaw State University. It has been accepted for inclusion in Journal of Global Initiatives: Policy, Pedagogy, Perspective by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@Kennesaw State University. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@kennesaw.edu.

About the Contributors

David B. Austell is the Director of the NYU Office for International Students and Scholars at New York University where he is also an Associate Professor of International Education in the NYU Steinhardt School (adjunct). David has over twenty years of executive leadership experience in the field of International Education. In 1990, David received the Ph.D. from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, his dissertation having focused on Chinese students in the United States. In 1992, he was a Fulbright grantee in Japan and Korea.

Lisa Childress has served in various capacities as a leader in higher education in the U.S. and Japan over the past decade. At George Washington University, Dr. Childress has taught classes in higher education administration. As part of her research on internationalization, Dr. Childress worked with ACE on a study that explored internationalization plans at 32 universities. Her article on this study will be published in the Journal of Studies in International Education. Dr. Childress has served as a director of international projects at Duke University, international career consultant at University of Virginia, and education consultant in Japan.

Mary Haggai, Ph.D., teaches in the Faculty of Education, University of Jos, Nigeria.

Chapurukha Kusimba is Curator of African Anthropology at the Field and Professor of Anthropology at the University of Illinois, Chicago. He has published extensively on the archaeology and ethnology of East Africa. His books include, The Rise and Fall of Swahili States (1999), East African Archaeology: Foragers, Potters, Smiths, and Traders (co-edited with Sibel B. Kusimba (2003)), and Unwrapping a Little Known Textile Tradition: The Field Museums Madagascar Textile Collection (2004).

Ngozi Obidike, Ph.D., teaches in the Faculty of Education, Nnamdi Azikiwe University, Awka, Nigeria.

Esther Oduolowu is a Senior Lecturer in Early Childhood Education in the Department of Teacher Education, University of Ibadan, Nigeria. She has authored many articles published in learned journals. She provides consultation and professional development to National (Nigeria Education Research Council and Development NERDC), International Organizations (UNICEF, Nigeria and World Bank Education sector, Nigeria), Schools and Early Child Care and Education Centres in Early Childhood matters. She is a member of NAEYC and OMEP Nigeria.

Priya Roy is currently at Indiana University, Bloomington. She is the author of six professional publications, and drawing on her experience in China, she has written this article. In 2010, she will be joining the venerable Wall Street investment bank, Morgan Stanley.

Cyril O. Wilson is a Ph.D. student at Indiana State University. Cyril completed his BA in Fourah Bay College, University of Sierra Leone majoring in Geography. He then did an M.Sc. in development studies from Njala University, Sierra Leone, an MA in environmental and urban geography from University of Illinois at Chicago. He also has an MA in anthropology from University of Illinois at Chicago.