Message from the President

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Frank Allen and the Editorial Board of The Southeastern Librarian for the excellent work they have done with our publication. In my opinion, the fact that they have recruited a group of SELA members to provide peer review of the journal is a major accomplishment. Equally impressive is the fact that all four issues of volume fifty are available on the SELA website. This is the first complete volume to be made available to the membership electronically. I am excited by what this offers for the future, and I look forward to other changes Frank and the board are planning.

Our Leadership Conference in Atlanta on May 16 was an excellent meeting. Even with budgets as tight as they are in most libraries, we had one of the larger Leadership Conferences in recent years. It gave me an opportunity to work with a number of members whom I had not met before. One of the most inspiring parts of the day was participation by what - at least to my knowledge - was our first currently enrolled full-time student committee member. Active committee participation by a growing number of SELA members and the beginning of active student participation, are encouraging signs for the health of the association and the library profession in the Southeast. I really appreciate the enthusiasm expressed by both those who were able to attend the conference and those who were limited to electronic participation.

All the work done at the Leadership Conference will go a long way toward making 2003-2004 another successful biennium for SELA. Working together, we can accomplish a lot on behalf of the libraries and the library and information profession in the Southeast even when facing challenging economic times. We look forward to another impressive biennial joint conference as we help the North Carolina Library Association celebrate its One Hundredth Anniversary in 2004. Planning for that conference was a major part of what was done at the conference. The SELA tradition of providing excellent programs at its conferences will continue because of that work.

The SELA Conference Committee held lengthy meetings with representatives of the North Carolina Library Association to discuss plans for the joint conference. It is probable that the conference will be held during the fall, but the exact site has not been determined. The other committees meeting during the conference did a lot of planning that will lead to outstanding conference programs. They have a lot of exciting ideas for programs that they hope, in many cases, to develop in cooperation with their counterparts in NCLA.

I would especially like to thank Lauren Fallon for all her hard work in helping organize the conference. I would also like to thank the members of the Executive Committee - Judith Gibbons, Vice-President/President Elect; Faith Line, Secretary; and Diane Baird, Treasurer - for their help in planning a successful conference.

If you are interested in being active this biennium, it still is not too late. If your name was not on the list of committee appointments that was distributed with the Leadership Conference registration materials and you would like to serve on a committee, please contact me by e-mail at <ahamilton@gasou.edu> or by snail mail at Box 8074, Georgia Southern University, Statesboro, GA 30460-8074. We can use your help whether in person or electronically!

Call for Proposals

Georgia Conference on Information Literacy

Georgia Southern University

October 8-9, 2004

Jointly hosted by the Zach S. Henderson Library, the Department of Writing and Linguistics, and the College of Education at Georgia Southern University, the Georgia Conference on Information Literacy seeks proposals for workshops and presentations that address the following themes and issues:

- Strategies for teaching information literacy to students and/or faculty across the curriculum
- Empirical studies on the effect of information literacy initiatives on student retention and/or learning
- Learning communities and information literacy
- Creating teaching partnerships between reference librarians and instructors
- What constitutes information literacy in the 21st century
- Encouraging lifelong learning through information literacy
- Technological developments and their impact on student research
- Strategies for evaluating sources
- Information Literacy and the Sciences
- Computers in the writing classroom: how the research paper has changed
- Developing learning outcomes for information and technological competence
- Preparing students for the modern University

The Georgia Conference on Information Literacy will offer both hands-on workshops and concurrent sessions for K-12, community college, and university librarians and educators, covering a broad spectrum of needs and proficiencies with twenty-first century information literacy skills and issues, from those seeking how-to information to those wishing to contribute to the growing body of scholarship.

For more information, see the Call for Proposals at:

<http://conted.gasou.edu/informationliteracy.html> or contact Bede Mitchell, Dean of the Library, at wbmitch@gasou.edu or Janice Walker, Dept. of Writing and Linguistics, at jwalker@gasou.edu.

Proposals must be received by no later than December 15, 2003.

Leadership Conference Roundup

The May 16th SELA Leadership Conference in Atlanta was a rousing success, with paid attendance of 55 members. President Ann Hamilton (pictured below) opened with a welcome and update on association developments. Vice-President Judith Gibbons (second picture below) officially announced that the 2004 biennial conference will be held in conjunction with the North Carolina Library Association at a site to be announced. The morning program also featured an inspirational address from Charles Beard, who spoke on the Paradoxical Commandments of Leadership. As Charles shared, leaders routinely face obstacles, detractors, and critics. Our response to these distractions is the true hallmark of a leader. Members spent the balance of the morning in committee, section and roundtable meetings. After an enjoyable lunch, chairs gave reports. The Executive Board met in late afternoon to conclude the day. The following are selected reports from the day's events.

Reference Adult Services (RASS) Mary Ellen Johnson (Sequoyah Regional Library, Georgia) agreed to serve as chair-elect, and Naomi Sutherland, University of Tennessee at Chattanooga, will continue as secretary/treasurer.

Members reviewed evaluations from the section's program in Charleston on Information Literacy, all of which were positive. Members discussed several ideas for programs and presentations at the upcoming joint conference in North Carolina, including mentoring, recruitment, retention, and print versus electronic resources. The section welcomes new members and encourages those interested to join RASS.

- Nancy Noe, Chair RASS

Circulation and Reserves Roundtable

Committee members are interested in pursuing the following topics for future programs:

Circulation Public Service Issues--- A program dealing with circulation issues in which members of the audience are asked to discuss each of the issues, followed by a panel presenting their views on the best way to address them.

Circulation---Why circulation is increasing in some libraries and decreasing in other libraries.

Security---Programs dealing with both building and people-related security issues.

Group members discussed circulation issues that they had dealt with recently including:

- Fines and holds on patrons' records
- Interlibrary loans
- Manual and electronic inventories
- Reference items

- Christina Chester-Fangman, Secretary

Planning and Development Committee:

Discussion was vigorous and centered primarily on the development of a new 2004-2008 strategic plan for SELA. The initial thought was to circulate the old 1998-2002 strategic plan and ask for input from all members of SELA. This has not worked well in the past however. Two members suggested that we check with other regional associations regarding current directions and strategic plans, and report to the membership. It was also agreed that members will develop a web-based survey to solicit input for the 2004-2008 strategic plan. Once the survey questions are developed and web survey constructed, a URL for the survey and letter stating the committee's objective will be distributed to all members via e-mail. Additionally, an announcement will be made on the SELA Listserv prior to the survey's distribution, and including contact information for those wishing to use a paper based survey as opposed to the web form. The committee sincerely hopes that this methodology will produce a sizable response and empower the committee to more closely tailor the needs and expectations of SELA's 2004-2008 strategic plan to its participating members.

A tentative timeline for the project is as follows:

- June 15: Begin development of questions and Web based survey.
- July 1: Announce survey through SELA Listserv.
- July 7: Distribute survey via e-mail.
- Aug. 1: Analyze results.
- September/October: Committee member conference call/online/e-mail discussion of results and guidance in strategic plan development.
- October: Publish survey results and planning update in The Southeastern Librarian.

Possible ideas for questions that came up at the meeting:

- 1) Demographics: State; Institution type; Active SELA member?
- 2) Why did you join SELA?
- 3) What resources would you like to see SELA provide? For instance: Internships, Job Posting Service, Staff Training, Mentoring, etc.
- 4) What are the top five issues in your library? Budget, Advocacy, Electronic Resources, Staff Training, Mentoring, Leadership Training (other, please elaborate...)
- 5) What issues/roles would you like to see SELA address?

- 6) Can you suggest a way to address these roles? (optional)
 - 7) Are there other committees that you like to see within SELA?
 - 8) Would you be willing to receive your copy of the Southeastern Librarian solely in an electronic/online format?
- Wil Weston, (co-chair)

Continuing Education Committee: The Continuing Education Committee would like to organize a program for the 2004 SELA conference on the topic of "Organizing an Annual State Library Association Convention."

The Committee should soon have a website which will be linked to the SELA homepage. This website will be used to host information concerning SELA fellowships. It can be used to advertise the conference session. It also could be used as a forum and an information center for anyone who has and/or is planning to organize a statewide library association convention.

- Joe Freedman, co-chair

The Interstate Cooperation Committee

The Committee welcomed UNC-Chapel Hill School of Library Science student Amanda Wilson. Committee discussions included: ways to inform the general membership of the purpose of the ICC; a proposal to sponsor a program at the 2004 Fall Conference; and identification of issues facing member states.

The Committee will explore state projects and plans for the preservation of electronic information, particularly government produced business and Web sites produced only in electronic form.

The Committee will continue its work via email and welcomes input and participation from any member. If you are interested in working with this group please contact one of the co-chairs: Lona Hoover, Mississippi State, at lhoover@library.msstate.edu or Elizabeth Doolittle, Hollins University at edoolittle@hollins.edu

University and College Library Section

Members discussed ideas for upcoming Conference programs. The "New Voices" Program, sponsored by UCLS for the past two years, is on the agenda again for the Fall 2004 conference. Sarah Hammill, Florida International University, Vice Chair/Chair Elect will oversee the program. Participation from membership is encouraged. Contact Sarah at hammills@fiu.edu.

The possibility of sponsoring a second program to reach more of the membership was put on the table for discussion. The section will explore two possibilities: Catherine Lee will do follow-up for presentation on new technologies, and Daniel Liestman will do follow-up for presentation on SACs criteria.

Nominations for Vice Chair/Chair Elect, and Secretary for Jan 2004 – Dec 2005 term are being sought. Send nominations to Elizabeth Doolittle at edoolittle@hollins.edu

2002-2004 SELA Nominating Committee

Members met and discussed outstanding SELA leaders who committee members believed would be excellent candidates for the offices of President-Elect, Secretary and Treasurer. The committee was also mindful of selecting a slate of candidates representing the diversity of our regional association as well as its twelve member states. Potential candidates from Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina and West Virginia were discussed. All members of SELA are encouraged to make other recommendations to the committee by sending their suggestions to cbeard@westga.edu.

Georgia

State University of West Georgia News

Speaker Tom Murphy, former Speaker of the Georgia House of Representatives for 27 years, has donated the political papers and memorabilia housed in his office to the State University of West Georgia. The Ingram Library Special Collections/Archives Department will receive the collection. A re-creation of his office will be built on campus, complete with the actual contents including furnishings, photographs, plaques, etc, to make the papers accessible to the citizens of Georgia.

Murphy's papers will join an impressive accumulation of political collections in UWG's Ingram Library. U. S. Congressman Bob Barr recently donated his materials, and previous acquisitions include the entire political collection of former Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives Newt Gingrich. Other collections include papers from former Congressman Pat Swindall, and legislative collections from Ebb Duncan, Tracy Stallings, Charles Thomas, John Simpson, and Wayne Garner.

Emory University Acquires Library of Ted Hughes

The Robert W. Woodruff Library of Emory University has acquired the library of the late poet laureate of Great Britain Ted Hughes. At the time of his death in 1998 Hughes was among Britain's leading literary figures and the author of dozens of critically acclaimed collections of poems, including The Hawk in the Rain, Lupercal, Wodwo and Crow. His 1998 collection, Birthday Letters, chronicled his relationship with his first wife, the poet Sylvia Plath, and was an international bestseller as well as recipient of the Whitbread Book of the Year award. During the course of a distinguished life in letters, he also published many books for children, translations, a monumental critical study of Shakespeare, and other works. This acquisition unites the Ted Hughes library with the poet's literary archive, which Emory acquired in 1997. The Robert W. Woodruff Library offers a competitive annual fellowship for researchers needing support to travel to Emory for work in these and other of the Library's literary collections. More details may be found at:

<http://web.library.emory.edu/libraries/speccolls/>.

Literary Archive of Anthony Hecht Acquired by Emory University

The Special Collections and Archives of Emory University has acquired the literary papers of Anthony Hecht, considered by many to be one of the finest contemporary American poets. Hecht's second collection of poems, The Hard Hours (1967), received the Pulitzer Prize for Poetry in 1968, and subsequent collections have earned numerous honors and awards, including the Prix de Rome, the Bollingen Prize (1983), and the Eugenio Montale Award for lifetime achievement in poetry (1983). Other published collections include Millions of Strange Shadows, The Venetian Vespers, The Transparent Man, Flight Among the Tombs, and The Darkness and the Light.

KLAS Brings Better Library Services to Blind and Physically Disabled

Implementation of a new library automation system by the Georgia Library for Accessible Services (GLASS) is streamlining operations at the regional GLASS library in Atlanta and 13 sub-regional libraries for the blind and physically disabled around the state. Administered by the Georgia Public Library Service, GLASS provides the visually impaired and physically disabled with library services in the form of talking books, special playback equipment and Braille materials. Patrons who are not able to visit one of the 14 libraries in person may obtain talking books and other materials through the mail.

The new automation system, Keystone Library Automation System (KLAS) from North Carolina-based Keystone, Inc., streamlines and automates many library functions such as materials and machine inventory control, magazine subscription tracking, order and request processing, mailing card generation, and reporting and evaluation functions. KLAS is designed to be easily accessible with adaptive technology so that staff or library users with visual impairments can use the technology.

One of the biggest benefits of KLAS is that Georgia now has a statewide collection of materials for the blind and disabled, rather than 14 separate collections. This shared union catalog allows GLASS and the sub-regional libraries to provide expanded choices and quality library services to their users. For more information go to <http://www.public.lib.ga.us/lbph/>. Funding for KLAS comes from a federal Library

Services and Technology Act grant from the Institute for Museum and Library Services.

Kentucky

Annual Conference Update

Plans are underway for the Kentucky Library Association's Annual Conference in Louisville, October 8-11, 2003. This year's theme will be "Libraries in Defense of Freedom" and will focus on access to government information, freedom of information, right of privacy, digital copyrights, intellectual freedom, challenged books, the digital divide, and fair use. First Lady Laura Bush has been invited to speak at the conference.

Library Public Awareness Efforts

A Public Awareness Leadership Institute, consisting of four training sessions in different locations across Kentucky, will be held over the next several months. Participants will include library directors, staff, trustees, and Friends. Goals of the institute are to assist local communities in developing a local public awareness project for their library and to cultivate leadership skills. The Public Awareness Leadership Institute is a project funded by the Federal Library Services and Technology Act (LSTA/IMLS).

Thomas Fountain Blue Resolution

At the SELA Leadership Conference, Kentucky representatives presented for endorsement and support the Thomas Fountain Blue Resolution. The resolution was unanimously endorsed by the SELA Executive Board. SELA's endorsement for the resolution will be added to those entities already in support. The resolution is scheduled to go before the American Library Association Board in petition to become a proclamation from ALA. The Blue Resolution, researched and authored by ReINETTE Jones, follows:

RESOLUTION OF APPRECIATION OF REVEREND THOMAS FOUNTAIN BLUE

WHEREAS, Reverend Thomas Fountain Blue became the first formally trained African American librarian in the state of Kentucky in 1905 and went on to influence librarianship in Kentucky, in the South, and across the United States; and

WHEREAS, Reverend Blue supervised the establishment of the second public library in Kentucky that was exclusively for African Americans, located in three rooms of a house in Louisville, Kentucky in 1905; and

WHEREAS, Reverend Blue was the first African American to manage public libraries with an entire African American staff, and this was done within the first Carnegie Colored Libraries that were located in Louisville, Kentucky in 1908 and 1914; and

WHEREAS, Within the Louisville Western Colored Branch Library in 1912, Reverend Blue led the establishment of library education for African Americans in the United States; and

WHEREAS, The Louisville library training program resulted in the inclusion of African Americans in the public libraries workforce, with the initial impact being in the South and later spreading to other states in the U.S.; and

WHEREAS, Reverend Blue was the first African American to be placed on an American Library Association program in June 1922, when he spoke in Detroit, Michigan at the 2nd Annual Work With Negroes Round Table. The topic was the training of Negro librarians; and

WHEREAS, The Louisville library training program was used as a prototype for the establishment of academic library training exclusively for African Americans, beginning in 1925 at Hampton Institute in Virginia, which gave rise to the American Library Association accrediting library programs for African Americans; and

WHEREAS, Reverend Blue established the 1st Conference for Colored Librarians at Hampton Institute, March 15-18, 1927, and assisted with the 2nd Negro Library Conference held at Fisk University in Nashville, Tennessee, November 20-23, 1930; and

WHEREAS, The Louisville Carnegie Colored Libraries were seeds that grew beyond the borders of Kentucky and the United States, and these libraries served as the prototype for establishing the Carnegie Non-European library service in South Africa in 1928; and

WHEREAS, The American Library Association, the state of Kentucky, and many other states are faced with the challenge of recruiting, educating, and retaining African American librarians; therefore, be it

RESOLVED, that the American Library Association recognizes the leadership role of Reverend Thomas Fountain Blue in laying the foundation for the continued presence of African American libraries, library students, and library employees in all types of libraries within the United States and abroad; and be it further

RESOLVED, that copies of this resolution will be given to the Kentucky Library Association, Louisville Free Public Library, Jerry E. Abramson - Mayor of Louisville, Kentucky Department for Libraries and Archives, Kentucky Association of Blacks in Higher Education, Kentucky Alliance of Black School Educators, Special Libraries Association/Kentucky Chapter, Southeastern Library Association, Library Administration and Management Association, the Black Caucus of the American Library Association, and the Library and Information Association of South Africa.

Kentucky Department for Library and Archives (KDLA) Launches @yourlibrary Web Site

As part of its continuing public awareness initiatives, KDLA has launched an "@yourlibrary" web magazine. The site is directed primarily to public library staff and trustees, and is meant to be a resource for the public library community. Much of it is based on the series of statewide forums KDLA conducted last year. Over the next year, each "issue" of this website will focus on one of our public libraries' basic values (as determined in the forums): democracy, life-long learning, neighborliness, technology, and pride. The site is supported in large part by IMLS (Institute of Museum and Library Services), under the provisions of LSTA (Library Services and Technology Act). For more information see: <http://www.kdla.net/@yourlibrary/main.htm>

North Carolina

NC State Libraries Receive Award

The North Carolina State University Libraries have received the 2003 American Library Association (ALA)/Information Today "Library of the Future" Award for a Web-based, technology-enhanced and graphically attractive Library Online Basic Orientation program (LOBO). The program helps students use library services quickly and effectively. The cash award of $1,500 honors an individual library, library consortium, group of librarians or support organization, for innovative planning for, applications of, or development of training programs about information technology in a library setting.

South Carolina

USC Film Library Receives Grant

The University of South Carolina's Film Library has received a film preservation grant of $502,537 including $251,268 from the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH). The grant will be used to preserve 200,000 feet of early sound Movietone Newsfilm from nitrocellulose film to 35mm safety film. The project, which is part of the NEH "History of Talking Pictures," will preserve approximately 225 edited newsreel stories and associated outtakes, together with supplemental paper documents from the first two years of sound-on-film newsreel production, a period widely regarded as pivotal in the development of film technology and news reporting. In addition to the NEH funds, the Film Library will contribute $101,269 in salaries, supplies, and indirect costs. USC's office of research will provide the remaining $150,000.

USC Receives John Burroughs Collection

The University of South Carolina's Thomas Cooper Library recently received a collection of materials pertaining to the American nature writer John Burroughs (1837-1921). The collection, which includes over 100 volumes by Burroughs as well as original photographs and memorabilia, was presented to the library by Prof. G. Ross Roy. It is called the W. Ormiston Roy Collection of John Burroughs in honor of Professor Roy's grandfather. The elder Roy knew Burroughs and served as a consultant on the landscaping of Burroughs's estate in the Catskills. Burroughs is increasingly recognized as a pioneer in raising consciousness of conservation issues. As a follower of Ralph Waldo Emerson and Henry David Thoreau, and friend of Walt Whitman, he also has a significant role in American literary history.

Tennessee

Library Gets New Assistant Director

The Chattanooga-Hamilton County Bicentennial Library in Chattanooga, Tennessee is pleased to announce that Barry Bradford has been selected as the new Assistant Library Director. Mr. Bradford joined the Chattanooga library system in 1993 as Head Librarian for the Ooltewah/Collegedale Branch Library. Most recently he served as the Head of the Fine Arts Department for the main library. He obtained his MLIS degree from LSU in 1991. He also holds a BA degree in History and a Master of Divinity degree. Before working at the Chattanooga-Hamilton County Bicentennial Library, he served as the Branch manager for the Latter Memorial Library, a branch of the New Orleans Public Library system.

West Virginia

Shepherd College Library Renovation

Scarborough Library, Shepherd College, Shepherdstown, West Virginia will complete renovation in August, 2003 of its original building. The Scarborough construction includes a 45,000 square foot addition to the 1960s building, housing both The Robert C. Byrd Center for Legislative Studies and the Library. Senator Byrd's papers from his 50 years in public service will reside in the Center. For additional information, contact Dr. Rachel A. Schipper, Dean of Libraries and Information Sciences.

Marshall University Receives Gift

Marshall University Libraries have received a donation of art glass, a collection valued at $500,000, from Wilbur E. Myers. The collection, entitled the Wilbur E. Myers Gallery of Glass, comprises nearly 400 pieces representing the best of art glass from around the world from such recognized glass houses as Fostoria, Steuben, Tiffany, Wheeling, Fenton, and Bruckunier. Special display cabinets, designed by master craftsman John Kellner, surround the collection with glass enclosures on two sides, showing the collection in its best light. Mr. Myers has collected glass for over 40 years. For additional information, please contact Barbara Winters, Dean of Libraries, Marshall University.

People News

Tommy Anderson, Head of the Montgomery City-County (Alabama) Main Library, has been appointed as the new Collection Development Librarian for the library system. Tommy holds a BA degree from Huntington College and a MLS from the University of Alabama. Tommy has been employed with the public library for over twenty years and served as head of the Main Library for seventeen years. Tommy will be responsible for the strategic development of the library system's collection and will direct the work of the Technical Services Department.

Carolyn Argentati (pictured below), Associate Director for Public Services at the North Carolina State University Libraries, has been named a 2003 Frye Leadership Institute Fellow. Entrance into the program is both prestigious and highly competitive. The Institute provides an intensive two-week residential program held in early June for faculty, librarians and university information technology professionals who aspire to more significant leadership roles.

Beth Ashmore joined Samford University (Alabama) Library as Reference Librarian in January. Ms. Ashmore is a 2001 graduate of the Library and Information Science program at the University of Illinois and earned a B.A. in English from Loyola University. Before coming to Samford, she served as the Instruction Services and Distance Education Librarian at Mississippi State University.

The School of Library and Information Studies (SLIS) at the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa is pleased to announce the appointment of Dr. Elizabeth S. Aversa as Director effective August 16, 2003. Dr. Aversa received her Ph.D. from Drexel University's College of Information Studies, and her M.Ln. and B.A. from Emory University. She was formerly Director and Professor of the School of Information Sciences at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville. Before her appointment as Director at the University of Tennessee in 1999, Dr. Aversa served for five years as Dean and Associate Professor of the School of Library and Information Science at The Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. Her impressive list of prior administrative, teaching, and research positions include the Institute for Scientific Information, the University of Maryland, Drexel University, Florida State University, and the State Library of Pennsylvania.

Laura M. Botts recently was hired as Archivist of the Popular Music Collection at Pullen Library, Georgia State University, Atlanta. Botts previously was a music librarian/archivist for the Georgia Music Hall of Fame in Macon. She obtained an MLIS degree from Florida State University, Tallahassee (1995), and a bachelor's degree from Shorter College, Georgia.

Ms. Sheri Singleton Boulter passed away on May 6 after a brief illness. Sheri served as a Reference Librarian and Head of Reference & Information Services for the Montgomery (Alabama) City-County Public Library before moving on to work with Air University Library at Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery. Sheri was a graduate of the University of Alabama's School of Library and Information Studies.

Dee Brown, 1908-2002, librarian and historian from Arkansas, died this past December. He was the author of twenty-nine books, including the much-acclaimed Bury My Heart At Wounded Knee (1971). For many years, Brown worked as a librarian during the day and wrote at night. When Brown retired as Agricultural Librarian from the University of Illinois in 1972, he returned to Arkansas, and was able to devote more attention to his writing and research. Brown received numerous awards over the years, and was honored recently by having a branch of the Central Arkansas Library System named for him.

Laura G. Burtle recently was promoted to Associate University Librarian for Technology

Services at Pullen Library, Georgia State University, Atlanta. Burtle has served Pullen Library for nine years, most recently as head of Instruction and Learning Technology Services. Burtle obtained an MSLS from the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill (1994), and a bachelor's degree from the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Virginia.

Lori Critz recently joined the Georgia Institute of Technology Library staff as the Information Consultant to the School of Physics and the School of Earth and Atmospheric Sciences. She previously served as a Physical Sciences librarian and a member of the Science-Engineering Team at the University of Arizona. Prior to her tenure at the University of Arizona, Lori worked at the Naval Historical Archives in Newport, Rhode Island processing military collections, and also at the Naval War College Eccles Library as a reference intern. Lori has a BS in biology from the University of West Florida, a MS in biology from Southern Connecticut State University, a "Fifth Year" certification in secondary education from San Diego State University, and an MLIS from the University of Rhode Island.

Jerene Cruse has joined the Information Services Department of Georgia Institute of Technology Libraries as a Library Assistant III. Jerene is originally from St. Croix, US Virgin Islands. She attended Brandeis University, Massachusetts, where she majored in English and American Literature with extensive course work in African American Studies.

Mary Beth Faccioli has been appointed Reference and Instructional Services Librarian at Agnes Scott College, effective June 16, 2003. From 1996 to 2003 Mary Beth worked as a Library Associate at Georgia State University, where she worked with reference services, reference collections, and served as a web specialist. She received her M.L.I.S. from Florida State University in 2002, and holds a B.S. from the University of Maryland, College Park.

Pamela S. Hackbart-Dean recently was promoted to Head of Special Collections & Acquisitions at Pullen Library, Georgia State University, Atlanta. Hackbart-Dean has served Pullen Library for three years, most recently as

SOLINET Announces Winners of the Fourth Annual Outstanding Library Programs Awards

SOLINET's Outstanding Library Programs Awards recognize library accomplishments that illustrate the benefits of library collaboration, serve as models of effectiveness, and/or advance the development of innovative programs. The awards are given in three categories. In the fourth year of the awards program, a committee of judges from SOLINET member libraries named the following winners, who were recognized May 2nd at the SOLINET Annual Membership Meeting in Atlanta.

- Continuing Education and Staff Development Awarded to the Orange County (FL) Library System, for their Spectrum Program, which offers new managers seeking a flexible learning experience the chance to rotate through management support positions in different departments and branches. The participating staff spend three months at each site and learn more about their skills and abilities under a variety of circumstances, gaining a system-wide perspective, and emerging better prepared for further management challenges.
- Multitype Library Cooperation Awarded to the Pulaski County (Virginia) Library System, in conjunction with the Pulaski County Public Library & School System, for their development of the "Virtual Library Card" to provide all county residents with access to a wealth of databases and other electronic reference materials provided by the Library of Virginia. The card was issued to all students in the county system, along with instructions for use and a brochure detailing its benefits. Costs of the program are offset by multiple uses of the card, including student identification. A model of the well-received program has been created that can easily be replicated by other public library and school systems. For information on the "Virtual Library Card," see www.pclibs.org/virtual_library.htm.
- Preservation and Electronic Information Awarded to the Virtual Library of Virginia (VIVA) for their "Virginia Heritage Project."

initiated in 1997, it provides access to 400 years of African American history in Virginia, encompassing the Colonial era, the Revolutionary and Civil Wars, Reconstruction, and important events in the 20th and 21st centuries. With funding from the National Endowment for the Humanities plus matching funds from participating institutions, the project has created a searchable web-based union database of encoded finding aids to more than 3,300 individual archival collections housed at 19 separate libraries. The project has also developed a model for the statewide dissemination of training in Encoded Archival Description, an emerging international standard. The "Virginia Heritage Project" is accessible at www.lib.virginia.edu/vhp

ASERL Creates Program Options for Non-Member Libraries

Members of the Association of Southeastern Research Libraries (ASERL) have voted to allow non-member research libraries to participate in ASERL programming. The new program category, called "ASERL Program Affiliates," allows research libraries anywhere to join ASERL's shared catalog, document delivery system, implementation of competencies for research librarians, and upcoming cooperative virtual reference and journal storage efforts. ASERL Program Affiliates pay an equal share of program expenses as ASERL member libraries plus an administrative fee to cover overhead costs. Program Affiliates are not, however, members of ASERL and therefore are not
