Sonatine for Bassoon and Piano  | Alexandre Tansman
Born in Poland, Alexandre Tansman spent most of his musical career in France where he moved after attending school in Poland. He received a degree from the Lodz Conservatory, while he also got his doctoral degree in law from the University of Warsaw. Tansman preferred to call himself a Polish composer, although his music was highly influenced by neoclassical and French composers; two mentors in particular impacted his music indefinitely- Maurice Ravel and Igor Stravinsky. Although Tansman’s music was not as popular as most famous composers, his solo piano performances were sought after internationally. Written in 1952, the Sonatine for Bassoon and Piano is a precise example of how his music combines both neoclassical and French elements of music. Chromatic, expressive and free, all three movements of the piece explore the range and facility of the bassoon. All three movements total a length of around nine minutes.

Bassoon Concerto in A minor, RV 497  | Antonio Vivaldi
Antonio Vivaldi was born in Venice, Italy, on March 4th of 1678 and passed away in 1741 leaving behind a long legacy of Baroque compositions. Best known for his numerous instrumental concertos for various instruments, Vivaldi was also a famous teacher all around Europe during his era. Not only was Vivaldi a scholarly composer and successful violinist, but he studied religion as well. Ordained in 1703, he was unfortunately unable to deliver mass due to health problems; this was also the reason he was unable to gain proficiency on any wind instrument. Vivaldi wrote thirty-nine concertos for bassoon, which at the time was quite remarkable since the bassoon was not seen yet as a solo instrument in Venice. His Concerto in A minor, RV 497 is broken into three movements and is about ten minutes long.

Six Bagatelles for Wind Quintet  | Gyorgy Ligeti
Gyorgy Ligeti was born in Transylvania, Romania, on May 28th in 1923, and in 2006, later passed away in Vienna after becoming a citizen of Austria. Before he finished his education at a conservatory in Cluj, Romania, he and his family were separated and sent to labor and concentration camps. Once the war ended, he was later able to finish his degree and become a teacher with the assistance and aid of Zoltan Kodaly. Ligeti transcribed the Six Bagatelles for Wind Quintet in 1953, later to become one of the most popular pieces of music for wind quintet. All movements are no longer than 3 minutes each, and the majority fall under two minutes. This music was first performed in 1956, however, the final movement was censored due to the Soviet government deeming it “too dangerous.” The total length of the piece is around 12 minutes.
Bassoon Sonata | Camille Saint-Saens
French composer, instrumentalist and conductor, Camille Saint-Saëns was born in Paris on October 9th, 1835. After being compared to the child prodigal pianist Mozart, he attended the Paris Conservatory for organ performance while he became a more prominent composer. Although he was not a stellar organist, he was recognized as a fantastic teacher including well known students such as César Franck and George Bizet. He wrote the wind sonatas (bassoon, oboe, clarinet) in the final year of his life and were the only wind sonatas written. The bassoon sonata was the last one written and is said to be “a model of transparency, vitality and lightness” that illuminates both the humor and tranquility of the sound of the bassoon. Funny enough, Saint-Saëns wrote to a friend, "I am using my last energies to add to the repertoire for these otherwise neglected instruments." The sonata is broken into three movements: Allegro moderato, Allegro scherzando, and Molto adagio - Allegro moderato and runs about twelve minutes in total length.

Andante e Rondo Ungarese | Carl Maria Von Weber
Carl Maria Von Weber was born in November of 1786, and he later passed away in June of 1826. Noted for his development of the Romantic era, Weber wrote for many ensembles and solo instruments but was most known for his operas: Der Freischutz, Euryanthe, and Oberon. Each of these major works influenced music following his era, including Wagner's music as well as Mendelssohn's A Midsummer Night's Dream. Weber not only wrote music for the piano but was a fantastic pianist himself; his piano concert piece (Konzertstück in F Minor) alone impacted Chopin, Liszt, and Mendelssohn. The expressive and melodic qualities Weber used in his writing for solo instruments was incredibly successful; his ear for opera and the human voice sings through his music. Weber originally wrote the Andante e Rondo Ungarese for the viola in 1809 (specifically for his brother) but later rewrote the music as a request from Georg Brandt, bassoonist of the Munich Orchestra, after the success of his Concerto in F Major. The piece is broken into two movements, the expressive, lyrical Andante and charismatic Hungarian Rondo, and together create a length of around nine minutes.

Shelby Jones is a senior at Kennesaw State University pursuing a B.M. in Bassoon Performance under the tutelage of Laura Najarian, Second Bassoonist of the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra. Shelby plays principal bassoon with the KSU Symphony Orchestra and Wind Ensemble, and often performs chamber music with her colleagues in the School of Music. In 2015, Shelby became the first student to win the KSU Concerto Competition twice with her performance of Weber's Andante e Rondo Ungarese, which will result in her performance of the work in 2016 with the KSU Symphony Orchestra. This follows her win in 2013 with the third movement of Weber's Bassoon Concerto in F.

Outside of KSU, Shelby has had additional studies with Carl Nitchie, Kristin Wolfe Jensen, Martin Kuuskmann, Jeffrey Lyman and William Ludwig. Most recently, she attended the Eastern Music Festival where she studied with Karla Eckholm and George Sakakeeny. In 2014, she attended the Pierre Monteux School for Conductors and Orchestra Musicians, where she often performed in a principal role.

In addition to studying bassoon performance, Jones takes part in accompanying soloists on piano, as well as building her own studio of young bassoonists. She is also privately studying with Dr. Benjamin Wadsworth for an additional concentration in ear training and music theory.
