

May 2015

About the Contributors

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.kennesaw.edu/jgi>

Part of the African Studies Commons, International Relations Commons, and the Peace and Conflict Studies Commons

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 License.

Recommended Citation

(2015) "About the Contributors," Journal of Global Initiatives: Policy, Pedagogy, Perspective: Vol. 9 : No. 2 , Article 12.
Available at: <https://digitalcommons.kennesaw.edu/jgi/vol9/iss2/12>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by DigitalCommons@Kennesaw State University. It has been accepted for inclusion in Journal of Global Initiatives: Policy, Pedagogy, Perspective by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@Kennesaw State University. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@kennesaw.edu.

About the Contributors

Akanmu G. Adebayo, PhD, is professor of history and director of the Center for Conflict Management at Kennesaw State University. He is editor-in-chief of the Journal of Global Initiatives.

Fonkem Achankeng I, PhD, a Hubert H. Humphrey International Fellow, is an assistant professor at the University of Wisconsin Oshkosh. Dr. Achankeng received his degrees from the University of Benin, Nigeria; the University of Buea, Cameroon; the University of Minnesota; Antioch University, Yellow Springs, Ohio; and Nova Southeastern University, in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida. Previously he was a senior official in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Cameroon and also served as Executive Director of the Association for Nonviolence. A recipient of the Chic Nichols essay award, Dr. Achankeng's research interests include postcolonial nationalism and conflict; human and people's rights issues; identity, culture and conflicts; refugees & migrant experiences; and the working poor. His many peer-reviewed articles and book chapters have appeared in: Journal for the Study of Peace and Conflict; African Journal on Conflict Resolution; Africa Peace and Conflict Journal; Diaspora Studies; Journal of International Studies and Development; Oxford Journal of International Affairs; Experiences of Immigrant Professors; Indigenous Conflict Management Strategies in West Africa. Dr. Achankeng's most recent book is British Southern Cameroons: Nationalism & Conflict in Postcolonial Africa (2014). His book, Nationalism and Conflict in the Postcolonial World is upcoming with Lexington Books.

Tunde Agara, PhD, earned his university education and degrees from the University of Ife and the University of Benin in Nigeria. He teaches Comparative Politics and Strategic Studies in Ambrose Alli University, Edo State, Nigeria, where he was the past director of the Center for Strategic and Development Studies. He has many articles published in academic journals and books such as Africa in World Politics, Research Methods: A Step by Step Analysis, and edited a number of books including Theoretical Perspectives in Strategic Studies: A Reader, and Understanding Marxism in the 21st Century: Theory and Practice.

Phillip E. Agbebaku, PhD, lectures in the Department of Political Science, Ambrose Alli University, Ekpoma, Edo State, Nigeria. Currently, he is the director of the university's Entrepreneurship/Career Centre. He has participated in several local and international conferences. Among his most important research accomplishments are extensive publications in local and international journals which include Journal of Social Sciences (JSS), International Review of Social Sciences and Humanities (IRSSH), and Nigerian Forum (a publication of the Nigerian Institute of International Affairs, NIIA).

Isaac Olawale Albert, PhD, is professor of African History, Peace and Conflict Studies at the Institute of African Studies University of Ibadan, Nigeria. He established the MA and PhD postgraduate programs of the Universities of Ibadan and Ilorin in Peace Studies and was the UNDP (Accra, Ghana) Consultant for the establishment of the MA Peace and Development Studies course of the University of Cape Coast, Ghana. He is a lead facilitator of the three MA Security Studies program of the Kofi Annan International Peacekeeping Training Centre (KAIPTC), Accra, Ghana. In 2007, he served as the country director of the Nigeria Office of the Institute for Democracy in South Africa (IDASA-Nigeria) to oversee the 2007 elections in Nigeria. He is the regional board chairman of the West African Network for Peacebuilding (WANEP), Accra, Ghana and the board chairman of the Society for Peace Studies and Practice (Nigeria). He is the immediate past director of the Institute of African Studies, University of Ibadan. He was a federal delegate to the 2014 National Conference held in Abuja and is currently a member of the Presidential Panel on the Review of Nigeria's Defense Policy.

David R. Andersen-Rodgers, PhD, is an associate professor of government at California State University, Sacramento, where he also serves as the coordinator of the Peace and Conflict Resolution minor. His teaching and research interests focus primarily on conflict resolution, peacebuilding, and human security.

Mary Fadal Edokpa holds BSc and MSc in political science, and is currently working on her PhD degree. She is a lecturer in Department of Political Science, Ambrose Alli University, Ekpoma, Nigeria.

Layi Egunjobi, PhD, was educated at the University of Ibadan (Geography) and University of Nottingham (Urban and Regional Planning). He worked in the Nigerian Institute of Social and Economic Research (NISER) for 13 years, before becoming the first Director of the Centre (now Department) for Urban and Regional Planning in the University of Ibadan. He rose to the professorial rank in 1991, thus becoming the first professor of Urban and Regional Planning at the premier university. Egunjobi, now a retired professor, has quite a substantial number of publications to his credit in form of books, chapters in books, articles in learned journals and conference proceedings. He is currently the President of the Town Planners Registration Council of Nigeria.

Lovett Z. Elango, PhD, was educated in the United States where he earned degrees in journalism, international relations and history. From 1975 to 1992 he taught in the Department of History, the University of Yaounde, as senior lecturer and associate professor. He served as chair of the Department from 1980 to 1983. Professor Elango was a visiting professor at Ball State University, Muncie, Indiana during the 1983-84 academic year and Fulbright Scholar-in-Residence at the University of Florida in Gainesville from 1988-1989. From 1992 to 2005 he was Professor of History at Kennesaw State University (KSU), Georgia U.S.A. He retired from KSU in 2005 as Professor Emeritus and, briefly from 2005 to 2006, he was Adjunct Professor in the Department of History, University of Buea, Cameroon. Professor Elango is published in several international journals including the International Journal of African Historical Studies, and has contributed to the UNESCO General History of Africa. He and his family now live in Buea, Cameroon.

Paul Ilo is a PhD candidate in peacebuilding at the Centre for the Study of Religion, Conflict and Cooperation, London Metropolitan University, UK. He also holds a Master's degree from the University of Kent, UK. He has organized over 200 programs on the subjects of positive change, international relations and conflict resolution on four continents. He is the author of thirteen books, including United Nations Mediation in West Africa (2013). In 2014, he was honored by the Junior Chambers International in Osaka, Japan, for his contributions to peacebuilding and international development. He has helped to train and inspire youths in several parts of the world. His research interests cut across various themes ranging from religious peacebuilding, religion and politics, international organizations and negotiation/mediation. He is the founder of Royal Diadem Int'l Network and co-founder of Education to Africa, organizations committed to developing people in Africa and beyond.

Ndubuisi Odiaka is a PhD candidate at the University of Ibadan, Ibadan, Nigeria. He is a scholar on peace, inter-agency policing, policing cultures and regimentation. Combining an eclectic mix of knowledge in peace study and physical planning, and as an internationally trained security agent, Ndubuisi's scholarship is focused on transforming policing ethics and culture. Ndubuisi has presented at and participated in several conferences, training programs, and workshops at the local and international levels on good policing, governance, and sustainable development, among others. Ndubuisi had earlier held key positions in non-governmental and for-profit organizations. He presently serves in a Nigerian national security agency as an administrative head of operations.

William E. Odion, PhD, lectures in the Department of Political Science, College of Education, Igueben, Edo State, Nigeria. He has participated in several local and international conferences. Among his most important research accomplishments are extensive publications in local and international journals which include Journal of Social Sciences (JSS), International Review of Social Sciences and Humanities (IRSSH), Nigerian Forum (a publication of the Nigerian Institute of International Affairs, NIIA), African Security Survey (ASS), a publication of the Centre for Strategic and Development Studies).

Victor Martínez Reyes, PhD, is a political scientist and psychologist. He has carried out extensive research on negotiation, including cases like the negotiations that ended communism in Poland (between the communist government and Solidarity), the Polish - EU membership negotiation, labor negotiations in shipyards and airlines' merger negotiations. Dr. Martínez Reyes has worked as a professional negotiator representing multinational corporations in Central Europe and Latin-America. He has facilitated collective agreement negotiations for airlines, shipyards, and automakers. In addition to researching negotiation and working as a negotiator, Dr. Martínez Reyes has taught negotiating strategies as a consultant to corporations, governmental entities, and other organizations. Dr. Martínez Reyes is the author of several books about negotiations, including Beyond Principled Negotiations, Negotiation Strategies for the Real World. Dr. Martínez Reyes is currently in charge of launching a new negotiation training and consulting firm in Orlando, Florida. Contact: v.mareyes@gmail.com

