In a strange twist of life imitating art, there's even one Flight 815 passenger who wrote a novel called Bad Twin. The popular character Sawyer was seen reading the manuscript in his reading chair (a salvaged airplane seat), and viewers were curious. So a real-world publishing company later published the book, and Macon State College added this unique title to its collection—and to Sawyer's reading chair in the display.

Sawyer's area also contains a reproduction of his tent, Oceanic Airlines water bottles and blankets, and a replica of his bizarre reading glasses, patched together from two pairs salvaged from the wreckage.

"My original idea," says Haywood, "was to draw attention to some classic library books. And also to the second floor of the Library. We used to occupy just one floor, and even a couple of years after our renovation, some folks don't seem to be aware that the library now has two floors. Since a few of us at the Library are Lost fans, the idea sort of snowballed. But what better way to get patrons to check out the upstairs than to provide them a recreation of the Survivors' beach camp, Dharma stations, and even a model of the infamous Smoke Monster!"

In conjunction with the exhibit, the Library has plans for events, contests, and give-aways throughout the fall semester. "All of the books in the Exhibit are available for check-out," says Haywood, "even if it's the Stephen King book under the polar bear's paw!"

The Robert W. Woodruff Library of the Atlanta University Center is undergoing a major interior renovation that will transform the Library space into a 21st century learning environment. Library operations are continuing throughout the construction project, with a temporary entrance and Lower Level service area in use until January.

Until December 2009, archival research and reference services will be relocated and may be limited due to construction in the Woodruff Library Archives & Special Collections Reading Room. Researchers planning a trip to the Woodruff Library Archives this fall are strongly urged to make research appointments by contacting Archives staff at archives@auctr.edu or 404-978-2052.

As construction unfolds, the Woodruff Library of the Atlanta University will continue to share additional service changes at <http://www.auctr.edu/renovation-site/index.asp>. For more renovation information, call 404-978-2067 or email libraryrenovation@auctr.edu. ►►

Athens Regional news and notes

With environmental concerns on everyone's minds, the Athens Regional Library System has taken steps to "go green" as a library system. ARLS branches began offering reusable book tote bags for sale in August. The tote bags, which are just the right size to hold books and other library materials, are bright blue with the slogan, "Buy the bag. Borrow the books," printed on the front and back. They sell at branches for $2 each. Plastic bags, formerly available at check out desks all the time, are now only available at the libraries on rainy days. "We feel that we are taking a step in the right direction," said Athens Regional Library System Director Kathryn Ames. "Americans throw away an average of one billion plastic bags every year, and each one can take 1,000 years or more to break down. We want to do our part to help reduce the number of bags thrown away each year and protect our environment."

The move toward reusable bags coincided with the System's participation in the Georgia Public Library Service's "Kill-A-Watt" loan program. Each of the System's branches has the Kill-A-Watt toolkits available for checkout. "We are pleased to have these toolkits available to our patrons," Ames said. "Now people can find out how much energy they use at home and have the information they need to make decisions that could save energy and reduce their utility bills."

In an era where technology is constantly evolving, it is
