John Williams - Sound the Bells!

One of the most popular and successful American orchestral composers of the modern age, John Williams is the winner of five Academy Awards, 17 Grammys, three Golden Globes, two Emmys and five BAFTA Awards from the British Academy of Film and Television Arts. Best known for his film scores and ceremonial music, Williams is also a noted composer of concert works and a renowned conductor. Williams’ scores for such films as Jaws, E.T.: The Extra-Terrestrial, Schindler’s List, as well as the Indiana Jones series, have won him multiple awards and produced best-selling recordings, and his scores for the original Star Wars trilogy transformed the landscape of Hollywood film music and became icons of American culture.

John Williams was born in New York and moved to Los Angeles with his family in 1948. There he attended UCLA and studied composition privately with Mario Castelnuovo-Tedesco. After service in the Air Force, Mr. Williams returned to New York to attend the Juilliard School, where he studied piano with Madame Rosina Lhevinne. While in New York, he also worked as a jazz pianist, both in clubs and on recordings. He then returned to Los Angeles, where he began his career in the film industry, working with such composers as Bernard Herrmann, Alfred Newman, and Franz Waxman. He went on to write music for many television programs in the 1960s, winning two Emmy Awards for his work. In January 1980, Williams was named nineteenth Conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra since its founding in 1885. He assumed the title of Boston Pops Laureate Conductor, following his retirement in December 1993, and currently holds the title of Artist-in-Residence at Tanglewood.

Sound the Bells! was written in 1993 for the Boston Pops Orchestra and their tour of Japan. The wedding of Crown Prince Naruhito and Masako Owada occurred near the date of these performances and was a center point of celebration. Huge Japanese temple bells were an inspiration for the piece and the reason for the heavy use of percussion in this piece.

Ryan George - Firefly

Ryan George currently resides in Austin, Texas where he is active as an arranger and composer. Ryan received his undergraduate degree in music from the University of Kentucky. His work, ranging from music for the stage to music for the football field, has been performed throughout the United States as well as in Asia and Europe.

The Composer writes:

I’m amazed at how children use their imaginations to transform the ordinary and normal into the extraordinary and fantastic. Just about anything they come across can be used to spark their fantasies and usher their minds into unseen worlds. A stick on the ground becomes a wand with magical powers or a sword to fight off bad guys. A collection of rocks turns into buried treasure and a blanket stretched over two chairs becomes a cave to hide in. Just about anything found in nature; birds, waterfalls, flowers, and even insects take on mythic identities when viewed through the eyes of a child.

The idea for “Firefly” was born one night as I watched my 4-year old become mesmerized by a firefly that had wandered into our front yard. When I asked her what she thought of the “firefly” she looked at me with a puzzled look and said with a corrective tone “Dad, that’s not a firefly... it’s Tinkerbell, and she’s come to take me on an adventure!”

Firefly is dedicated to my daughters Sophia and Nyla, who ignite my imagination and bring awe and wonder into my life every day.

Bruce Broughton - Excursions for Trumpet and Band

One of the most versatile composers working today, Bruce Broughton writes in every medium, from theatrical releases and TV feature films to the concert stage and computer games. His first major film score, for the Lawrence Kasdan western Silverado, brought him an Oscar nomination. His very next project, a classically styled score for Barry Levinson’s Young Sherlock Holmes, earned a Grammy nomination for the soundtrack album. With over 20 Emmy nominations, Broughton has received a record 10, most recently for HBO’s Warm Springs. Numerous TV credits also include the main titles for JAG, Tiny Toon Adventures, and Dinosaurs, as well as scores for Amazing Stories, Quincy, and How The West Was Won. Movies for television include Lucy, Bobbie’s Girl, and O Pioneers!; and the miniseries Roughing It, The Blue and the Gray, and the Emmy-nominated True Women.

Broughton is a board member of ASCAP, a governor of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, a former governor of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, and past president of The Society of Composers and Lyricists. He has taught film composition in the Advanced Film Music Studies program at USC and is a frequent lecturer at UCLA.

The composer writes:

Excursions was written for symphonic band in 1995. It has been preformed and recorded by The United States Air Force Band and is performed often by college and university bands in the United States, Europe and Australia. Although not literally a programmatic piece, Excursions is based upon a tune that wanders in and out of various musical situations. After a short introduction by the soloist, the main theme is presented over a lightly ambling accompaniment. The theme travels this way and that, running into some interesting diversions along the way and eventually meeting itself, where it began at the introduction. Angular melodies and driving rhythms characterize the piece, permeating the various “musical situations” through which the trumpet leads the band. Broughton masterfully uses fragments of the opening thematic material including wide leaps, syncopations and a rising 16th note figure in countless new combinations.

David Maslanka - Symphony No. 4

David Maslanka was born in New Bedford, Massachusetts and attended the Oberlin College Conservatory, where he studied composition with Joseph Wood. During this time, he also spent a year at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, Austria. Following his undergraduate work at the Oberlin Conservatory, he received his graduate degree in composition at Michigan State University, studying with H. Owen Reed.

The composer writes:

The source that gives rise to a piece of music are many and deep. It is possible to describe the technical aspects of a work - its construction principles, its orchestration - but nearly impossible to write of its soul-nature except through hints and suggestions.

The roots of Symphony No. 4 are many. The central driving force is the spontaneous rise of the impulse to shout for the joy of life. I feel it is the powerful voice of the Earth that comes to me from my adopted western Montana, and the high plains and mountains of central Idaho. My personal experience of the voice is one of being helpless and torn open by the power of the thing that wants to be expressed - the welling-up shout that cannot be denied. I am set aquiver and am forced to shout and sing. The response in the voice of the Earth is the answering shout of thanksgiving, and the shout of praise.

Out of this, the hymn tune “Old Hundred,” several other hymn tunes (the Bach chorales “Only Trust in God to Guide You” and “Christ Who Makes Us Holy”), and original melodies which are hymn-like in nature, form the backbone of Symphony No. 4.

To explain the presence of these hymns, at least in part, and to hint at the life of the Symphony, I must say something about my long-time fascination with Abraham Lincoln. Carl Sandburg’s monumental Abraham Lincoln offers a picture of Lincoln in death. Lincoln’s close friend, David Locke, saw him in his coffin. According to Locke, his face had an expression of absolute content, of relief at having thrown off an unimaginable burden. The same expression had crossed Lincoln’s face only a few times in life; when after a great calamity, he had come to a great victory. Sandburg goes on to describe a scene from Lincoln’s journey to final rest at Springfield, Illinois. On April 28, 1865, the coffin lay on a mound of green moss and white flowers in the rotunda of the capitol building in Columbus, Ohio. Thousands of people passed by each hour to view the body. At four in the afternoon, in the red-gold of a prairie sunset, accompanied by the boom of minute guns and a brass band playing “Old Hundred,” the coffin was removed to the waiting funeral train.

For me, Lincoln’s life and death are as critical today as they were more than a century ago. He remains a model for his age. Lincoln maintained in his person the tremendous struggle of opposites raging in the country in his time. He was inwardly open to the boiling chaos, out of which he forged the framework of a new unifying idea. It wore him down and killed him, as it wore and killed the hundreds of thousands of soldiers in the Civil War, as it has continued to wear and kill by the millions up to the present day. Confirmed in the world by Lincoln, for the unshakable idea of the unity of all the human race, and by extension the unity of all life, and by further extension, the unity of all life with all matter, with all energy and with the silent and seemingly empty and unfathomable mystery of our origins.

Out of chaos and the fierce joining of opposite comes new life and hope. From this impulse, I used “Old Hundred,” known as the “Doxology - a hymn to God”; “Praise God from Whom all Blessings Flow”; “Gloria in excelsis Deo” - the mid-sixteenth century setting of Psalm 100.

I have used Christian symbols because they are my cultural heritage, but I have tried to move through them to a depth of universal humanness, to an awareness that is not defined by religious label. My impulse through this music is to speak to the fundamental human issues of transformation and re-birth in this chaotic time.

Doug Lindsey joined the faculty at Kennesaw State University in the Fall of 2012. Most recently he just completed a two-year fellowship as the second trumpet for the Wisconsin Brass Quintet as doctoral candidate in Trumpet Performance at UW-Madison. He will graduate with his DMA in the December of 2012.

As a chamber musician, Mr. Lindsey has been actively concertizing throughout Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Illinois with both the WBQ and the Isthmus Brass Ensemble. Prior to his tenure with WBQ, Mr. Lindsey performed with the Yale Faculty Brass trio in a series of concerts ending in Carnegie Hall in New York City. In addition to the faculty brass, Mr. Lindsey also pursued a busy schedule with the Atticus Brass Quintet—winner of the 2009 Aspen Music Festival Quintet Fellowship. With Atticus, Mr. Lindsey had the opportunity to play outreach concerts all over Connecticut, perform alongside the American Brass Quintet, and play an exclusive concert on the Millennium Stage of the Kennedy Center in Washington DC.

As an outreach educator in Yale’s Music in Schools program, under the direction of John Miller, Mr. Lindsey worked with dozens of young musicians each day. As a teacher, he had the task of preparing the students each week for a dizzying array of competitions and concerts that ranged from playing in the school lobby in the “rise and shine” concert series, all the way to unique opportunities at VH1 at the ‘Save the Music Foundation’ in New York City. Additionally, through this program, he was afforded the opportunity to create, rehearse, and conduct his own unique arrangements for the John Daniel’s Middle School band program.

As an orchestral musician, Mr. Lindsey has played principal and section trumpet with numerous orchestras and bands under the baton of some of the finest composers and conductors. Many of these fantastic experiences happened while attending the Aspen Music Festival and School in both 2009 as a brass quintet fellow and 2011 as the orchestral trumpet fellow. In addition to orchestral section work, Mr. Lindsey has had many appearances as a featured soloist - performing repertoire ranging from Bach’s 2nd Brandenburg Concerto to Arban’s Carnival of Venice. As a chamber soloist competitor, Mr. Lindsey has competed as a finalist in the International Trumpet Guild’s solo competition, the National Trumpet Competition, and several rounds and levels of both the Arkansas and Connecticut MTNA solo division.

Previous to UW, Mr. Lindsey studied with Allan Dean at Yale, earning his Master of Music with the distinction of winning the John Swallow excellence in brass prize. Prior to Yale he studied with Ray Mase, Louis Ranger, Kevin Cobb, Scott Moore and Richard Rulli. Mr. Lindsey received his music performance and music education degrees magna cum laude from the University of Arkansas-Fayetteville.

Mr. Lindsey is an Edwards performing artist and clinician, and his website can be www.dougtrumpeter.com
