HBCU NEWS:

HBCU Library Alliance Announces ASERL Librarian Exchange Participants

The Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCU) Library Alliance is pleased to announce the participants of the Librarian Exchange Program with the Association of Southeastern Research Libraries (ASERL).

A component of the HBCU Library Alliance's Leadership Institute, the Librarian Exchange Program, in partnership with ASERL, focuses on development of emerging leaders at HBCU libraries. In Phase IV of the Leadership Program, the exchange program has been expanded to allow for hosts from HBCUs, as well as ASERL. This encourages sharing of HBCU library best practices, increases networking within the HBCU community, and explores the internal capacity to sustain the exchange program beyond the grant. Seven more HBCU librarians will work with another library, either an HBCU or ASERL library, on a pre-identified area for strategic development within the HBCU. In addition, staff from host
