Program Notes

Bach French Suite No. 3 in B minor, BWV 814, has six dance movements: Almende, Courante, Sarabande, Minuette I & II, Anglaise, and Gigue. Anglaise is an optional dance that appears only in this French Suite. It is a French dance originating from around the 17th century. The designation “French” associated with the suite is not Bach’s, but the light elegance of French dance quality is ubiquitous.

Scriabin’s fifth piano sonata (composed in 1907) is one continuous, though sectional, work. One hears the rich harmonies which were his tools for the expression of ecstasy. It is known that the expression of ecstasy was among his central aims. Scriabin headed the printed text of this sonata with an excerpt from his “Poem of Ecstasy”:

I call to you life, O mysterious forces!
Drowned in the obscure depths
Of the creative spirit,
Timid shadows of life, to you I now bring courage

The sonata consists of five themes, which intertwine and evolve throughout the work: 1) the intense trill, 2) slow, languishing theme, 3) dance-like presto based on material from the languishing theme, 4) a transition marked imperioso (imperative), and 5) a meno vivo section based on the languishing theme.

Ouachita Waters (Prelude for Piano) is written while composer Laurence Sherr was Artist-in-Residence in Hot Springs National Park in Arkansas in the summer of 2009. The music describes the journey of the water from the base of Hot Springs Mountain, part of the Ouachita Mountains in Arkansas and Oklahoma. The composer wrote the following Hot Springs water: “Rainfall is absorbed in the valleys and ridges north and east of the springs. During its 4000-year descending journey it percolates to a depth of approximately a mile. Heated, the water rises rapidly through a fault area, taking only a year to ascend. Reaching the surface at some 40 springs, its temperature averages 143°F. Steamy mist from the few uncapped springs returns some of the hot liquid to the atmosphere, while most water is collected for distribution to bathhouses, spas, and thermal drinking fountains. The untapped water flows into Hot Springs Creek, which eventually joins the Ouachita River”

7 chae + 6 chae by Dae-Soon Kim is based on the rhythmic patterns used in the Korean traditional percussion music in ceremonial performances that are to invoke the heavens for good harvests in ancient farmlands. The composer is known to explore different ways of using the folk elements of his native country in his music.

Ravel’s Miroirs, composed in 1905, is a suite in five movements. Une barque sur l’Océan (“A Boat on the Ocean”) is a third piece in the suite, and it depicts a small boat as it sails upon the waves of the ocean. Arpeggiated sections as well as sweeping melodies imitate the flow of ocean currents. This movement was dedicated to the pianist Ricardo Víñes. The fourth piece, Alborada del Gracioso (The Gracioso’s Morning Song), is dedicated to M. D. Calvocoressi, and uses the Spanish seguidilla rhythm. The double glissandi in this movement are notorious.

Charles-Camille Saint-Saëns, born in 1835, is considered a Late-Romantic French composer. He was an organist, conductor, and pianist. He wrote six etudes for Op. 52, and the Etude en forme de Valse is the virtuosic work he wrote as the last etude of the set.
Pianist Hee-Kyung Juhn was born in South Korea. She lived her teenage years in South America and was later trained in the United States. She made her orchestral debut at the age of 16, playing Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto No. 1 with the Orquesta Sinfónica de la Ciudad de Asunción. In the U. S., Juhn attended The Juilliard School (MM) and Indiana University (DM), and has participated in music festivals such as Tanglewood, Aspen, Bowdoin, and Yale Piano Summer Institute. Her teachers include Leonard Hokanson (a pupil of Artur Schnabel), Arthur Greene, Martin Canin, and collaborative pianists Martin Katz, Marshall Williamson and Jonathan Feldman.

In addition to numerous solo and chamber appearances, Hee-Kyung Juhn has collaborated with many outstanding musicians and has appeared on concert stages in South America, Asia, and throughout the United States. She has played in venues such as Seoul Arts Center and Sejong Cultural Center in Seoul, Queen Elizabeth Hall in Belgium, Teatro Municipal in Paraguay, Weill Recital Hall in Carnegie Hall, etc. Juhn was on summer staff at the Great Mountains International Music Festival, South Korea, and the Martina Arroyo Foundation, Inc. in New York City.

The American Record Guide praised her recording of the Goldberg Variations by J. S. Bach (MSR Classics), saying that her playing is "sensitive and imaginative" and that she displays "a fine sense of style and . . . command." The Gramophone wrote "her acumen for voice-leading lends impressive clarity." The New York Concert Review called Juhn "a top notch, superb pianist . . . technically brilliant, subtle. . ."

A versatile pianist, Hee-Kyung has worked as an opera coach, staff accompanist, and church musician (organist and choir master). She has taught at the University of California, Santa Barbara and has served as associate faculty in Collaborative Piano at the Music Academy of the West in Santa Barbara. She often serves as a judge and adjudicator for various competitions and festivals. She has given lectures on the subject of Bach in Indiana University, World Piano Pedagogy Conference, and local teachers' associations. Her recording of the Goldberg Variations is available at www.msrcd.com and www.amazon.com. She was heard on NPR and other broadcasting venues.

Currently, she is the Director of Keyboard Studies at Henderson State University in Arkadelphia, AR.
