PROGRAM NOTES

CHESTER

Chester is the third and final portion of Schumann’s New England Triptych and a brilliant climax to the set. The tune on which Chester is based was a famous American Revolutionary hymn and marching song of the same name. It was practically the unofficial national anthem during the war. Schuman developed and extended the orchestral version, making Chester into an overture for band, and it has become one of the great classics for band music in the United States. In the first section Schuman introduces the tune first in the woodwinds and then in the brasses. In the next section the melody is given a more contemporary setting with mid-20th-century rhythmic and harmonic devises utilized to sustain interest. The closing section brings back the hymn-like treatment of the theme, and the work is brought to a dramatic close.

NIMROD

The Enigma Variations (from which “Nimrod” is taken) were written for orchestra in 1899 and bore the dedication “To My Friends Pictured Within.” The theme and fourteen variations belong to that period in which Elgar developed the style that placed him in the front rank of English composers. The immediate success of the opus can be attributed in part to its programmatic characteristics, but the fact that the work has lived and continues to bring enjoyment to audiences is due to the contrasting moods and to Elgar’s masterful writing for instruments. “Nimrod” is the fifth of the variations, and depicts the great hunter of the Bible. The German word for hunter is “Jaeger,” and the reference here is to the German publisher, A. J. Jaeger.

MOTHER EARTH (A FANFARE)

David Maslanka’s works for winds and percussion have become especially well known. His works have been recorded on the Albany, Cambria, CRI, Mark, Novisse, and Klavier labels, and he has served on the faculties of the State University of New York at Geneseo, Sarah Lawrence College, New York University, and Kingsborough College.
This fanfare for Wind Band is inspired by the words of St. Francis of Assisi:

Praised by You, my Lord, for our sister, MOTHER EARTH,
Who nourishes us and teaches us,
Bringing forth all kinds of fruits and colored flowers and herbs.

SYMPHONY NO. 6, OP. 69

There have been few more universally admired twentieth-century American composers than Vincent Persichetti. His contributions have enriched the entire musical literature and his influence as performer and teacher is immeasurable.

More than any other major American composer, Persichetti poured his talents into the literature for wind band. From the Serenade for Ten Wind Instruments, Op. 1 to the Parable for Band, Op. 121, he provided performers and audiences with a body of music of unparalleled excellence. Of his 14 band works, four are of major proportions: Masquerade, Parable, A Lincoln Address and Symphony for Band. Of lesser compositional importance, the Divertimento is nevertheless one of the most widely performed works in the entire repertoire.

The Symphony for Band was commissioned and premiered by the Washington University Band in 1956. According to the composer, it could have been titled “Symphony for Winds,” since it followed his “Symphony No. 5 for Strings.” Persichetti, however, did not wish to avoid the word “band,” which he felt no longer had the connotation of a poor quality of music. According to Jeffrey Renshaw, “The Symphony for Band... was in many ways such a departure from the established concepts of band works that it influenced the attitudes of generations of composer.”

The four movements have forms with traditional implications. The opening horn call and a following scale-wise passage in the slow introduction become the two principle themes (in reverse order) in the subsequent Allegro. The slow second movement is based on “Round Me Falls the Night,” which is taken from Persichetti’s “Hymns and Responses for the Church Year.” The third movement serves as the traditional dance movement and is followed by a finale in free rondo... form, drawing thematic material from the preceding movements and concludes with a chord containing all twelve tones of the scale.

BIST DU BEI MIR

Bach’s second marriage, in 1721 when he was thirty-six, was to the twenty-one-year-old soprano, Anna Magdalena Wilcken, the daughter of the court trumpeter of Weissenfels. In addition to being a fine singer, Anna Magdalena also played accompaniments on the harpsichord. Bach, a music teacher as well as an organist, choirmaster and composer, copied out two collections of music for his young wife, one in 1722, shortly after their marriage, and the second in 1725.

These two volumes of music have come to be known as the Anna Magdalena Notebooks. They contain works primarily for keyboard, but also include a few vocal pieces. Some of the works in these collections are by other composers, but most are by Bach himself.

In the second of the Anna Magdalena Notebooks are included several songs, one of which is Bist du bei Mir (If You Are By My Side). It is one of Bach’s most frequently sung and best-loved songs. It is an expression of a deep and abiding love for a spouse, and it was a known favorite of Anna Magdalena’s. As a poignant love song to his beloved second wife, the text does reflect a musing on death, which is a thought that Bach expressed a number of times in his compositions. Freely translated, the words are “If you are here by my side, I shall be able to surrender peacefully to death.”

CAPRICCIO FOR SAXOPHONE QUARTET AND BAND

At the age of twenty-four, Warren Barker was appointed chief arranger for the NBC prime musical show, The Railroad Hour, a position he held for six years. Barker has been associated with 20th Century Fox, MGM and Columbia studios as composer-arranger-conductor for motion pictures and television. He has composed and conducted music for more than thirty-two different television series, including seven years as composer-conductor of the highly rated comedy series, Bewitched. The National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences honored him in 1970 for his original music written for the award winning series, My World and Welcome to It, based on the life of James Thurber. He was a member of the arranging staff for the

Since 1971, Barker has been writing exclusively for concert bands and educational ensembles. Capriccio for Saxophone Quartet was commissioned by John Paynter and the Northshore concert Band for a performance at the World Association for Symphonic Bands and Ensembles conference in Boston in 1987. The single movement work incorporates three distinct sections, each of which brings a uniquely playful image to the “Capriccio.”

DANZA DE LOS DUENDES

Danza de los Duendes was composed for Argentina's Orquesta Sinfónica de Tucumán, whose music director, Eduardo Alonso-Crespo, led the world premiere in 1992, a month apart from the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra’s North American premiere with conductor Kirk Muspratt. The work’s title refers to the malicious goblin-like creatures (los duendes) of South American folklore.

In 1996 Galbraith revised the work, and re-scored it as a wind symphony. The new "Danza" became her most popular piece, and is performed frequently by concert bands in North America, Europe, and Japan. In 1998 "Danza de los Duendes" appeared as the opening track on Klavier Records’ celebrated CD, "Dream Catchers", in a performance by the world-renowned North Texas Wind Sympony led by Eugene Corporon. In 2003 the composer transposed the work back to orchestral form.
