CHORALE

O OCCHI, MANZA MIA
O eyes of my beloved
Orlando di Lasso (1532-1594)

O occhi, manza mia, cigli dorati!
O faccia d’una luna stralucenti!
Tienemi mente, gioia mia bella,
Guardam’un poc’a me, fa mi contiento.

O eyes of my beloved, O eyes of my dear love,
‘neath arch’d brows glancing!
O face like moonbeams glowing in pale beauty!
If in thy mem’ry, my radiant jewel, one little thought you’ll hold for me, ‘twill make me content.

POKROV
Ion Melnik (b. 1935)

Edward Eanes, violin
Christopher Thibdeau, cello

To You, O Holy Mother,
Dare I to raise my eyes,
The face is washed with tears:
Hear me in this sad hour.

Accept my warm prayers,
Save my spirit save from bad and evil,
Pour content into my heart,
Put me on the path of salvation.

К ТЕБЕ, О МАТЕРЬ ПРЕСВЯТАЯ

К Тебе, о Матерь Пресвятая,
Дерзаю вознести свой глас,
Лице слезами омы́вая:
Услышь меня в сей скорбный час.

Прими мои теплее́шие моленья,
Мой дух от бед и зол избавь,
Пролей мне в сердце умиленье,
На путь спасения наставь.

This Marriage
Eric Whitacre (b. 1970)

May these vows and this marriage be blessed.
May it be sweet milk, like wine and halvah.

May this marriage offer fruit and shade
like the date palm.

May this marriage be full of laughter,
our every day a day in paradise.

May this marriage be a sign of compassion,
a seal of happiness here and hereafter.

May this marriage have a fair face and a good name, an omen as welcomes the moon in a clear blue sky.

I am out of words to describe how spirit mingles in this marriage.

O My Luve’s Like a Red, Red Rose
Rene Clausen (b. 1953)
lyrics by Robert Burns

Edward Eanes, violin
Christopher Thibdeau, cello

O my Luve’s like a red, red rose
That’s newly sprung in June.
O my Luve’s like the melodie
that’s sweetly played in tune.

As fair art thou my bonnie lass
so deep in luve am I,
I will luve thee still my dear
Till a’ the seas gang dry.

I will luve thee still my dear,
while the sands of life shall run,
Till the seas gang dry, my dear,
and rocks melt with the sun.
As fair art thou my bonnie lass,
So deep in love am I,
I will luve thee still my dear,
Tho’ it were ten thousand mile.

Weep, O mine eyes
John Bennet (1575-1614)
arr. William C. Powell

Weep, O mine eyes and cease not.
Alas these your springtides,
me thinks increase not.
O when begin you,
To swell so high that I may drown me in you.

У ворот, ворот

У ворот, ворот,
У ворот, ворот, ворот,
Да ворот батюшкиных.

Ай, Дунай, мой Дунай,
Ай, веселый Дунай!

Разыгралися ребята,
распотешились.

Одному-то молодцу
Да худо можется.

Худо можется,
Да нездоровится.

Нездоровится,
Гулять хочется.
At the gate, the gate, the gate, at my father’s gate.
Refrain: Ah, Danube, my Danube, ah, merry Danube!
At the gate, the gate, the gate, at my mother’s gate.
Refrain: Ah, Danube, my Danube, ah, merry Danube!

The guys are getting rowdy, they’re having fun.
Refrain: Ah, Danube, my Danube, ah, merry Danube!
I alone am feeling poorly.
Refrain: Ah, Danube, my Danube, ah, merry Danube!

Feeling poorly, feeling crummy.
Refrain: Ah, Danube, my Danube, ah, merry Danube!
I’m feeling crummy, I want to go out.
Refrain: Ah, Danube, my Danube, ah, merry Danube!

Сдoba A. Пушкина

Кто, волны, вас остановил,
Кто оковал ваш бег могучий,
Кто в пруд безмолвный и
dремучий
Поток мятежный обратил?
Чей жезл волшебный поразил
Во мне надежду, скорбь и радость
И душу бурную и младость
Дремотой лени усыпил?
Взыграйте, ветры, взройте воды,
Разрушьте гибельный оплот.
Где ты, гроза — символ свободы?
Промчись поверх невольных вод.

Who, waves, you stopped,
Who bound your running might,
Who to the pond silent and dense
The flow of rebellious drew?
Whose baton struck magic in me
the hope, grief and joy and soul m turbulent and young slumber of laziness lulled?
Play, winds, the nurse of the water
Destroy the disastrous bulwark!
Where are you, a storm - a symbol of freedom?
Will rush over involuntary treatment.
НАД ХАТЫНЬЮ КОЛОКОЛА
Above the Katyn Bells
Музыка И. МЕЛЬНИКА
Ion Melnik
words by I. Tokmakovoy

Ветер сладко пахнет гречихой,
The wind smells sweet like buckwheat,
Ветер горько пахнет полынью.
The wind smells bitterly of wormwood.

Ты не думай, что в мире тихо.
Do not think that the world is quiet.
Слышишь звон перезвон над
Do you hear the ringing of the chime above Katyn?
Хатынью?

В небе стаи парили крылаты,
In the sky, flocks hovered on wing,
Вился белый дымок над хатой,
There was a white smoke above the hut,
Просыхали хлеба на гумне,
The bread in the threshing floor was drying up,
Ночью травы шептали во сне,
At night, the grass whispered dreamily,
Нам во сне.
To us, as in a dream.

И протяжно девушки пели, и
And the girls sang slowly, and the тихонько колодцы скрипели.
wells creaked softly.
Тихо пели.
They sang softly,
И горька да горька полынь.
And the ever bitter wormwood.
Что случилось с тобою Хатынь?
What happened to you Katyn?
Больше хлеба нет на гумне.
More bread is not on the threshing floor.

Вся Хатынь, Вся деревня, в огне
All Katyn, the whole village, is on fire
Больше хлеба нет хлеба нет.
There is no bread, there is no bread.
Крик до неба детский плач.
A scream to the sky, a childish cry.
Сжег деревню фашисткий палач.
The village was burnt by a fascist executioner.

Эх, перезвон, перезвон, перезвон.
A ringing, a chime, a chime, a chime.
Только песня она не мертвья.
Only the song is not dead.
Зелена как и прежде трава.
Green as before is the grass.
Только жизнь не сожжешь дотла.
Only life you can not eternally burn.
Над Хатынью Колокола.
Above the Katyn Bells.
Бом, Бом, Бом, Бом.
Bom, Bom, Bom, Bom.

тобою.
Благословенна ты в женах,
и благословен плод чрева твоего,

Blessed are you among women,

Pavel Chesnokov was arguably the foremost Russian composer of sacred choral works during his time. He wrote around 500 choral works, about 400 of them sacred. Chesnokov was a devout follower of the Russian Orthodox Church and was inspired to write most of his works for worship in that faith. His best-known composition, one of the few works he is remembered for today, is Salvation is Created (1912), Spaséñiye sodélal, and a Communion hymn based on a Kievan (Ukrainian) chant. During the Soviet era, Chesnokov was better known as a choral conductor than composer. Indeed, he was praised, even by the Soviets, for his skills in choral conducting, though they remained hostile to his sacred music throughout his lifetime.

Chesnokov’s education was extensive: his first advanced studies were at the Moscow School of Church Music (graduated in 1895); he next worked privately with composer Sergey Taneyev and later studied at the Moscow Conservatory (graduating in 1917), where his list of teachers included Mikhail Ippolitov-Ivanov.

After the Bolshevik Revolution, Chesnokov was forced to abandon composition of sacred music, owing to sanction against such activity by the anti-religious Soviets. He thus embarked on composition in the secular choral realm.

From 1920, Chesnokov headed a choral conducting program at the Moscow Conservatory. He also remained busy, regularly conducting the choirs of the Bolshoi Theater and Moscow Academy. In addition, Chesnokov became the choirmaster at Christ the Savior Cathedral. In 1933, however, on orders from Stalin, the cathedral was demolished to make way for construction of a skyscraper that would never be built. Chesnokov became so distraught over the cathedral's destruction that he stopped composing altogether. He continued teaching and conducting various choirs in Moscow until his death on March 14, 1944. In the end, Chesnokov would go down as one of the most highly trained musicians in Russia, having spent years studying solfège, composition, piano, and violin.

Salvation is Created (transliterated from the Cyrillic – Спасение соделал or “Spaséñiye sodélal”) is one in a cycle of ten Russian Communion Hymns, Opus 25. This work bears the unfortunate distinction of being one of the last sacred works Chesnokov would compose before being forced to compose secular works by the increasingly oppressive leadership of the Soviet Union’s Cultural Bureau. The text for the hymn is based on a passage from Psalm 74: “But you, O God, are my king from of old; you bring salvation upon the earth.” His choral writing is characterized by a variety of textures, from austere unisons to sumptuous eight-part polyphony, and colorful harmony, which he often adds chromaticism. Approximately one-third of his sacred works are chant-based, while the rest are free compositions.

Orlando di Lasso. Legend has it di Lasso was such a good singer that as a boy he was kidnapped from his church choir three separate times by nobility to sing in choirs for them. He grew up to be one of the most prolific writers of the Renaissance period. His Italian madrigal O occhi manza mia is the quintessential masterpiece. Di Lasso was famous throughout Europe, and his music was so beloved that he was called “the divine Orlando.”

Ion S. Melnik (Ион Мельник, born October 11, 1935, Moscow, Russia) is a Russian and Soviet era composer. His compositions include songs, choruses, instrumental music, and music to documentary films. Melnik began his musical education at the age of seven when he joined the children’s ensemble of the USSR Ministry of Railways where he played the first dorma and later became the concertmaster of the orchestra. The music director of the ensemble was Simon Osipovich Dunaevsky, a brother of the legendary Soviet era composer, Isaak Osipovich Dunaevsky. In 1948, Dunaevsky recommended that Melnik enroll in the Seminar of Young Composers of the USSR's Union of Composers. After the Seminar, Ion Melnik continued to study composition at the Music College affiliated with the Moscow State Conservatory named after Tchaikovsky and the Leningrad State Conservatory named after Rimsky-Korsakov. The song Pokrov is a prayer to honor the Holy Mother. Pokrov is a Ukrainian religious holiday celebrated on October 14.

Modest Musorgsky was a member of a group of Russian nationalist composers known as “the Five” (also known as the “Mighty Handful”); the other members were Mily Balakirev, Alexander Borodin, Cesar Cui, and Nikolai Rimsky-Korsakov. Largely self-taught as a musician he was regarded as the most unconventional and innovative members of the group. He aspired to achieve a uniquely Russian musical identity, often in deliberate defiance of the established conventions of Western music, with regard to part writing and voice leading. Many of his works were inspired by Russian history, Russian folklore, and other nationalist themes. Among them the operas Boris Godunov and Khovanshchina, the orchestral tone poem Night on Bald Mountain, and the piano suite Pictures at Exhibition.

While working at a music school, Musorgsky, in 1880, made four arrangements of Russian folk songs for Men’s Choir a cappella. In these arrangements Mussorgsky demonstrates his sensitivity and skill in dealing with folk material: he preserves the songs modality, imitates some of the improvisatory aspects of “countervoice” polyphony, incorporates folk-style devices as breaths in the middle of syllables, and maintains the color of solo-tutti contrasts. While these songs remained unpublished during his lifetime, they clearly proved to be harbingers of things to come, finding their reflection in the arranging techniques of such composers as Katalsky, Chesnokov, Shvedov, and their Soviet-era successors, such as Sveshnikov.

The song У ворот, ворот, (U vorot, vorot batiushkinih) (At My Father’s Gate) is a whimsical song collected by the famous Russian folklorist Pyotr Kireyevsky (1808-1856). It is best known for its use in the middle movement of Tchaikovsky’s 1812 Overture, where it is used as one of the leitmotifs to symbolize the resilience of the Russian nation with its deep folk roots. Alexander Katalsky also arranged it for mixed voices. Both versions contain only a small selection of verses, which go on to talk about the pros and cons of married life in a somewhat bawdy and cynical fashion. Ethnographers have noted the frequent use of the word “Dunay” (Danube) in Russian, Ultrain, and Belorussian folk songs stems from regions that are far removed geographically from the great river that originates in the Alps and runs through Eastern Europe.

Eric Whitacre. In the spring of 1996, my great friend and brilliant violinist Friedemann Eichhorn invited me and my girlfriend (at the time) Hila Plitmann, to give a concert with him in his home city of Speyer, Germany. We had all met that year as students at the Juilliard School, and were inseparable.

Because we were appearing as a band of traveling musicians, ‘Friedy’ asked me to write a set of troubadour songs for piano, violin and soprano. I asked Hila (who was born and raised in Jerusalem) to write me a few ‘postcards’ in her native tongue, and a few days later she presented me with these exquisite and delicate Hebrew poems. I set them while we vacationed in a small skiing village in the Swiss Alps, and we performed them for the first time a week later in Speyer.

In 2001, the University of Miami commissioned me to adapt the songs for SATB chorus and string quartet. Each of the songs captures a moment that Hila and I shared together. Kalà Kallà (which means ‘light bride’) was a pun I came up with while she was first teaching me Hebrew. The bells at the beginning of Éyze Shéleg are the exact pitches that awakened us each morning in Germany as they rang from a nearby cathedral. These songs are profoundly personal for me, born entirely out of my new love for this soprano, poet, and now my beautiful wife, Hila Plitmann.
Lars Jansson. To the Mothers in Brazil: Salve Regina was created to serve as a platform for musical and text-based exploration and improvisation. Originally conceived as an instrumental work the choral arrangement by Gunnar Eriksson premiered in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, on March 7, 1995. It draws inspiration from the traditional Salve Regina text. Children are not the only ones to cry out for their mothers. Old men and women in solitude and despair cry out for their ‘mama’ like children. Mothers from all around the world travel to frontlines of war to bring their children home from unnecessary killing in pointless wars fought in the name of patriotism. Mary, mother of Jesus, represents well the loving, mothering qualities, and throughout history, people have cried out to her for comfort, aid and love.

Sergei Rachmaninoff’s All-Night Vigil, or Vespers as the work is commonly called, was composed during a two-week period in January and February 1915. The preceding years had been particularly successful. He was acknowledged throughout Russia, Europe and the United States as an eminent conductor and virtuoso concert pianist; and he had composed and received critical acclaim for many of his most significant compositions, including the Prelude in C-sharp Minor, three piano concertos and two symphonies. During these years, Rachmaninoff wrote his two most important choral compositions – the Liturgiia svyatovo Ioanna Zlatousto (Liturgy of St. John Chrysostom) in 1910 and Kolokola (The Bells) in 1913.

At the beginning of the Revolution in 1917, Rachmaninoff fled Russia and moved to Stockholm, then Copenhagen, and finally New York City. In the 1920s, he toured throughout Europe and the United States as a concert pianist. During the 1930s he lived mostly in a villa on Lake Lucerne in Switzerland, where he composed his Rhapsody on a Theme of Paganini and Symphony No. 3. He returned to the United States in 1939, where he died of cancer on March 28, 1943, just four days before his 70th birthday. He had hoped to be buried either in Switzerland or Russia, but because of travel restrictions created by World War II, he was buried in a cemetery outside New York City.

Rachmaninoff’s complete choral output consists of three sacred a cappella works set to liturgical Slavonic texts, two secular choral/orchestral compositions, two collections of part songs, two a cappella cantatas, and one Latin motet. Rachmaninoff was especially fond of the All-Night Vigil and The Bells.

Performances of the All-Night Vigil in Russia for about the first 30 years took place in concert halls. By the middle of the 20th century, however, performances also occurred in churches. Since 1957, the work has been performed regularly on the eve of Rachmaninoff’s birth in the Church of the Joy and All Sorrowful in Moscow.

The All-Night Vigil was dedicated to Stepan Smolensky, a friend of Rachmaninoff and the highly respected director of the Moscow Synodal School of Church Singing. The premiere was on March 10, 1915, in the Great Nobility Hall of the Kremlin. This event was extremely successful, so much so that five previously unscheduled performances were given after the premiere. Movement 6, Bogoróditse dévo, often performed separately, became the most popular of Rachmaninoff’s choral compositions during the 20th century.

The School of Music is busy preparing our students to be productive artists. We want them to be accomplished and creative leaders of the arts world of tomorrow, professionals who are diversely trained and well-practiced. Diverse in their backgrounds, our students hail from many of the leading musical arts and honors organizations from across the Southeast, and as a School of Music, we are dedicated to the purpose of furthering the arts and cultural offerings to our region and beyond.

Please take a look through our program book and notice those who advertise with us. They support us financially and help make this performance possible. I know that they will appreciate your patronage and support! Also, please note our Name a Seat Campaign listed within this program book. In preparation of our tenth anniversary, we have established a goal of naming 100 seats. Perhaps there is someone you would like to see honored in this way!
