SHEPARD'S

Shepard's Citations is a complete citation system showing citations by federal and state courts. Shepard's U.S. Supreme Court Cases on LexisNexis® Academic is available online in the Sturgis Library

SHEPARDIZING

Shepardizing is a technique developed by Shepard's (LexisNexis) where the validity of case law can be checked by looking at the treatment of the case in subsequent decisions.

SHEPARDIZING ONLINE USING LexisNexis

Use Shepard's for the following legal research tasks:

- Ensuring that a case has not been overturned, criticized, or distinguished by subsequent court decisions.
- Finding additional cases that stand for the same legal principle, or address similar legal issues. Shepard's helps you add relevant cases to your legal bibliography.
- Verifying that a legal citation is formatted properly.

Use Shepard's on LexisNexis® Academic for:

- Shepardizing U.S. Supreme Court Cases

PRIMARY RESOURCES

Primary law is mandatory authority. The legal system consists of three parallel systems – federal law, state law, and administrative law – operating under the authority of the United States Constitution and state constitutions. The primary law of each system is:

- * Statute: A law or legislative enactment that has been codified and made a rule of law.
- * Cases: Court decisions, at both trial and appellate levels.
- * Regulations: Rules promulgated by government.

SECONDARY RESOURCES

Secondary resources are materials that explain, analyze, critique or help find the primary sources of the law. These resources include some of the following:

- Legal dictionaries and legal thesauri
 - Black's Law Dictionary (KF 156 .B53).
 - Everybody's Legal Dictionary (Nolo) contains plain English definitions for more than one thousand legal terms.

Legal Resources on the Internet

Internet Legal Resources is a list of sites that provide legal information and materials (including laws, bills, court opinions, and related documents) and/or links to legal material. Only the most important Georgia State and U.S. sites have been selected. Some sites are official, some are not. Includes links to legal meta-indexes and general search engines. A few of these resources are as follows:

General

- www.gpoaccess.gov/, from the Government Printing Office. A collection of major sources, full text, including the budget; Code of Federal Regulations and Federal Register; Commerce Business Daily; congressional bills, calendars, directories, hearings, prints, reports, the Congressional Record, and other materials; Economic Indicators and President's Economic Report; General Accounting Office reports; selected administrative agency decisions; Supreme Court opinions; and U.S. Code and session laws.

- Federal Law, <http://www.law.cornell.edu/federal/>, from Cornell University's Legal Information Institute. Contains the U.S. Code, the Code of Federal Regulations, and decisions from the Supreme Court and Courts of Appeals.
